Helping or hoarding?

U.S. Army charity could be giving more to help troops, critics say

Associated Press

FT. BLISS, Texas As soldiers stream home from Iraq and Afghanistan, the biggest charity inside the U.S. military has been stockpiling tens of millions of dollars meant to help put returning fighters back on their feet, an Associated Press investigation shows.

Between 2003 and 2007—as many military families dealt with long war deployments and increased numbers of home foreclosures—Army Emergency Relief grew into a $345 million behemoth. During those years, the charity packed away $117 million into its own reserves while spending just $64 million on direct aid, according to an AP analysis of its tax records.

Tax-exempt and legally separate from the military, AER projects a facade of independence but really operates under close Army control. The massive nonprofit—funded predominantly by troops—allows superiors to squeeze soldiers for contributions; forces struggling soldiers to repay loans—sometimes delaying transfers and promotions; and too often violates its own rules by rewarding donors, such as giving free passes from physical training, the AP found.

Founded in 1942, AER eases cash emergencies of active-duty soldiers and retirees and provides college scholarships for their families. Its emergency aid covers mortgage payments and food, car repairs, medical bills, travel to family funerals, and the like.

Instead of giving money away, though, the Army charity lent out 91 percent of its emergency aid during the period 2003-2007. For accounting purposes, the loans, dispensed interest-free, are counted as expenses only when they are not paid back.

Army Community Services financial educator Yolanda Davis (center) talks with Pvt. Terrence Nicholas and his wife, Erika, last year in Ft. Bliss, Texas. APFILE

WHERE DOES THE MONEY GO?

What does Army Emergency Relief do with its retained wealth? Mostly, it accumulates stocks and bonds. AER ended 2007 with a $296 million portfolio; last year's tanking market cut that to $214 million, by the estimate of its treasurer.

During that same five-year period, the smaller Navy and Air Force charities both put far more of their own resources into aid than reserves. AER executives defend their operation, insisting they need to keep sizable reserves to be ready for future catastrophes.

"Look at the stock market," said retired Col. Dennis Spiegel, AER's deputy director for administration. Without the large reserve, he added, "We'd be in very serious trouble."

Make no mistake: AER, a normally uncontroversial fixture of Army life, has helped millions of soldiers and families. Last year alone, AER handed out about $5.5 million in emergency grants, $65 million in loans, and $12 million in scholarships. Despite the extra demands for soldiers busy fighting two wars, AER's management says it hasn't felt a need to boost giving in recent years.

But the AP encountered considerable criticism about AER's hoarding of its treasure chest. Smaller civilian charities for service members and veterans say they are swamped by the desperate needs of recent years, with requests far outstripping ability to respond.

Most charity watchdogs view one to three years of reserves as prudent. Yet the American Institute of Philanthropy says AER holds enough reserves to last about 12 years at its current level of aid.

Not all lawmakers are on board with 'Sin Express'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON The Republicans attacking President Obama's economic stimulus package point to a project they dub the "Sin Express"—a high-speed rail link between Anaheim, Calif., site of Disneyland, and Las Vegas.

Not so fast.

In fact, competition for the $8 billion in mass transit construction is just beginning.

Backers of numerous other planned high-speed rail corridors around the country are making their case for the money.

They notably include a Midwest initiative long supported by Obama himself.

It was Obama's White House that, in the final hours of negotiations over the $787 billion stimulus bill, sought and won the big sum for high-speed rail projects, far above what either the House or Senate had passed. Sen. Harry Reid (D-Nev.), who strongly supports the Anaheim-Las Vegas line, was happy to agree, but there's no guarantee his project will win dollars, to be determined by the Transportation Department. Critics, meanwhile, called an L.A.-Vegas link unnecessary.

Howard Learner, president of the Chicago-based Environmental Law and Policy Center, a group promoting a Midwest high-speed rail network, said his area is in excellent position to capture a good chunk of that money. The Federal Railroad Administration, he said, has recognized the Midwest initiative connecting Chicago and 11 metropolitan areas within 400 miles as the system most ready to go.

Obama and his chief of staff, Rahm Emanuel, are, of course, both from Chicago. Obama's transportation secretary, Ray LaHood, also is from Illinois, as is the Senate's No. 2 Democrat, Richard Durbin.

Freddy Krueger
NEW LINE PRODUCTIONS

Ready for Freddy?

Movie star sightings have slowed down recently, but I am hearing about the possibility of two productions heading to Chicago.

The re-imagined "Nightmare on Elm Street" is set to film in the city and surrounding suburbs, a source tells me. The flick still centers on horror icon Freddy Krueger, who kills people in their dreams. The cast has not been announced, but there has been a lot of Internet chatter as to who should play Freddy, with names such as Billy Bob Thornton and Johnny Depp tossed around. Earlier this month a producer on the movie shot down a rumor that Lindsay Lohan had signed on, according to Variety.

The other production is "The Trial of the Chicago 7," based on the trials of protesters at the 1968 Democratic National Convention. Ben Stiller reportedly is in talks to direct the film after Steven Spielberg dropped out.

Calls to the Chicago Film Office about both projects were not returned.

Quaids: Twins changed us

Dennis Quaid and his wife, Kimberly, came to town last week to tape an episode of "The Oprah Winfrey Show." The couple talked about their twins and recalled the harrowing situation last year in L.A. when their newborns almost died after receiving the wrong dosage of a drug while in the hospital.

During their trip they told people their twins have changed them and their perspective on life.

However, there's one thing the newborns certainty haven't changed about their parents: Their love for nightlife! After wrapping the talk show, the Quaids, who have partied in the Windy City several times before, headed to Manor nightclub. After closing it down, they headed to RiNo and stayed there past 3 a.m.

Feds talk to Burris

U.S. Sen. Roland Burris was interviewed by federal authorities Saturday as part of the ongoing corruption investigation into charges that former Gov. Blagojevich tried to sell the Senate seat for personal or political profit, according to sources familiar with the talks.

Burris

Burris has denied engaging in any trading for the post. But in testimony to state lawmakers and in response to reporters' questions, the senator has offered an evolving narrative over whom he contacted and what he did to secure the appointment by Blagojevich.

His accounts have resulted in a perjury inquiry by prosecutors in Springfield and a Senate Ethics Committee investigation, as well as a growing chorus of calls for Burris' resignation. The White House has urged Burris to use the weekend to mull his political fate.

Burris has given no indication that he plans to step down. He left his home on Sunday without comment.

Seller of Pop Rocks candy up in a fizzy

A potentially explosive legal battle has been launched in federal court, with the Spanish firm that sells Pop Rocks candy filing suit against a Niles sweets maker for infringing on its trademarks.

Zeta Espacial is accusing Imaginings 3—which according to its Web site sells candies ranging from Box of Boogers to pacifier-shaped suckers—of capitalizing on its brand by selling a carbonated candy product called Rock'N'Pop, according to the lawsuit.

Zeta's lawsuit alleges the Niles firm's fizzy candy name "blurs and whittles away at the distinctiveness and identity-evoking quality" of Pop Rocks.

Pop Rocks, according to General Mills' 1981 patent, is a gassified candy that, "when placed in the mouth, produces an entertaining but short-lived popping sensation" when carbon dioxide bubbles trapped in the candy under high pressure are released.

VIGIL FOR SLAIN TEENS

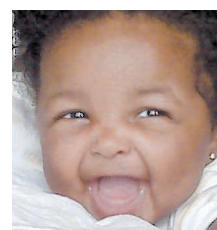

Rev. Larry Dowling (right), pastor of Chicago's St. Agatha church, joins others Sunday in prayer at the intersection of East 87th Street and South Exchange Avenue on the Southeast Side near the area where three teens were shot and killed Friday. The victims were identified as Johnny Edwards, 13, Raheem Washington, 15, and Kendrick Pitts, 17. Ministers and community activists gathered Sunday to discuss a plan to stop the surge in the killings of young people. JOSÉ M. OSORIO/TRIBUNE

Charges filed in deaths of Curry's daughter, her mom

Authorities have charged a former boyfriend and attorney for Nova Henry with the slayings of Henry and her 10-month-old daughter last month.

Frederick Goings, 36, of the 4600 block of South Drexel Boulevard, has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder, authorities said. Police have forensic and surveillance evidence against him, they said.

Henry and ex-Bulls center Eddy Curry had two children together—a 3-year-old boy who was in Henry's home at the time of her death and Ava Curry, who was killed along with her mother. In addition to having a "domestic relationship" with Henry, Goings also acted as her attorney, Area 3 Det. Lt. Denis Walsh said in a news conference Sunday evening.

Ava Curry

Nova Henry

Goings had acted as Henry's attorney in a legal dispute with Curry, according to court records.

Goings had stalked Henry in the past, and she had taken out an emergency order of protection against him, but had not made it permanent, Walsh said.

Henry and her daughter were found shot to death in her South Loop townhouse on 15th Street Jan. 24 after family members visited the home because they could not reach Henry by phone, police said.

Police would not describe the dispute that led to the killing beyond that it was domestic in nature. And police would not say whether Goings meant to kill Ava Curry.

"The baby was shot. Whether his intention was to shoot the baby is for someone else to decide," Walsh said.

Goings was arrested just after 10 p.m. in the 9600 block of South Prairie Avenue, where he had been visiting a relative in the area, and arrested him as he tried to enter his vehicle, police said. He was arrested without incident, but "He has not cooperated with authorities," Walsh said.

Lane Bryant clothes go to charity

Authorities say the piles of clothing that were inside the former Lane Bryant store in Tinley Park where five women were murdered in 2008 will be donated to a women's prison and two nonprofits in the southern suburbs. The clothes will go to the Dwight Correctional Center, a homeless agency called Together We Cope and the domestic violence nonprofit Crisis Center for South Suburbia.

Soldiers with local ties killed

Two U.S. Army Special Forces soldiers with connections to the Chicago area died in combat Friday near Khordi, Afghanistan. Army Staff Sgt. Jeremy Bessa, 26, a Downers Grove South High School graduate, died when his vehicle was hit by an improvised explosive device during a reconnaissance patrol, according to the Department of Defense. Master Sgt. David Hurt, 36, who was from Tucson, Ariz., but also a native of Oak Park, died from wounds received during the same incident.

Man shot on West Side

A 28-year-old man was fatally shot early Sunday on the Near West Side, police said. The man was shot multiple times while sitting in a vehicle in the 1200 block of South Loomis Street, according to police. Witnesses saw the man sitting in the rear seat of the vehicle along with a driver when a male gunman approached from behind and fired shots into the vehicle, Police Officer Laura Kubiak said.

Four-year-old Gael Dominguez looks out of his front door Sunday while the press interviews his mother, Elizabeth Cruz, about the boy's disappearance and subsequent safe return. Gael was in the back seat of a 2001 Ford Escape when it was stolen Sunday morning. CHUCK BERMAN/TRIBUNE

Stolen SUV found with boy inside

Chicago Police on Sunday found the stolen SUV that earlier was driven away with a 4-year-old boy in the back seat. The child was uninjured, police said.

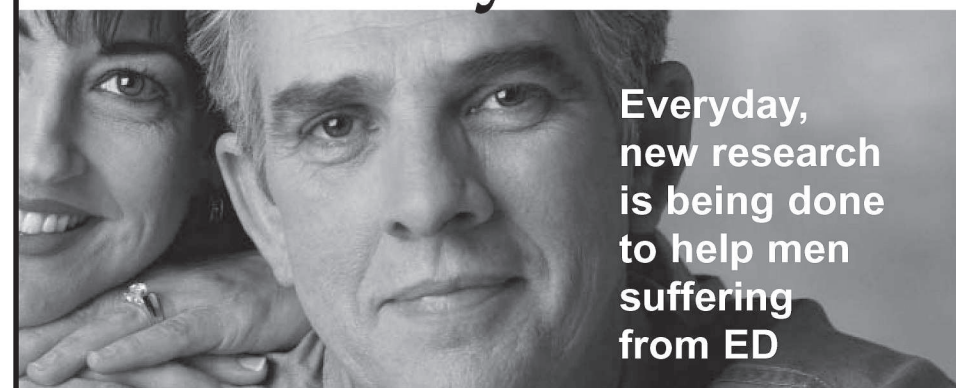

At about 1:10 p.m. officers discovered the vehicle, a 2001 Ford Escape, in an alley in the 4700 block of West Belden Avenue, said Chicago Police Officer Laura Kubiak. The boy was inside, safe, and he was soon reunited with his mother.

The SUV was spotted by a citizen who then called police, Kubiak said. The vehicle was originally reported missing from the 2400 block of North Lowell Avenue at 10:48 a.m.

The boy did not appear hurt, but authorities took him to Our Lady of Resurrection Medical Center as a precaution.

Police are searching for the person who took the vehicle.

Grenade attack

1 An attacker threw a grenade Sunday into a famed bazaar in medieval Cairo, killing a Frenchwoman and wounding at least 21 people—most of them foreign tourists, officials said. The bazaar was last attacked in 2005, when a suicide bomber killed three. AP PHOTO

Lawmaker accused

2 Former bodyguards accused a combative Sunni lawmaker on Sunday of directing a wave of violence in Iraq that ranged from a 2007 suicide blast inside the parliament building to kidnappings seeking just $30 ransoms.

Huge heist

3 Russian police were searching Sunday for suspects accused of stealing more than $1 million in cash in a highway robbery in Tula province south of Moscow—one of the country's biggest armed robberies in years.

Boy, 11, charged in shooting

4 An 11-year-old boy shot his father's pregnant girlfriend in the back of the head Friday while she was lying in bed in their home in Wampum, Pa., then got on the school bus and went to school, authorities said Saturday.

Hawaii's big battle

5 Hawaii has become the latest battleground in the fight for same-sex civil unions. It would become the fifth state to legalize the alternative to gay marriage if a civil union law is approved.

School bus fires

6 Authorities in West Brandywine Township, Pa., say seven school buses have been severely damaged by fire just outside Coatesville, a town that has been plagued by arsons.

Miners flee blast

7 Coal miners who escaped a gas explosion walk out Sunday from the Tunlan Coal Mine in Gujiao, in China's Shanxi province. A gas explosion ripped through the mine early Sunday killing at least 73 miners. AP

Source: Arrest expected in next few days in Levy's death

8 WASHINGTON A Salvadoran immigrant convicted of attacking two women in the park where Chandra Levy's remains were found was expected to be arrested in the next few days in the former intern's slaying, a person close to the investigation said.

An arrest would cap a revived investigation into the 2001 killing that had gone cold for years after destroying the career of former U.S. Rep. Gary Condit of California.

Investigators in 2002 questioned Ingmar

THE LEVY FILES

Chandra Levy was 24 and had just completed an internship with the U.S. Bureau of Prisons when she disappeared in May 2001 after leaving her Washington, D.C., apartment. The Modesto, Calif., woman was wearing jogging clothes when she vanished, and a man walking his dog found her skull and bones in the park a year later.

Guandique, now 27, in the slaying after he was convicted of attacking two women joggers in Washington's Rock Creek Park.

They didn't charge him, but statements he made to people while in prison helped lead investigators back to him, said the person, who spoke on condition of anonymity Saturday.

A law enforcement official who has spoken to investigators said the break came in part from DNA evidence that was either retested or collected, and it was connected to Guandique.

Authorities questioned Condit, her congressman, in the disappearance, but he was never a suspect in her death.

Better late than never. A woman in La Grande, Ore., finally received an invitation to her nephew's high school graduation in Toms River, N.J., but she may be a little late—it was in 1987. Relatives noticed her failure to respond but figured she just couldn't make the cross-country trip.

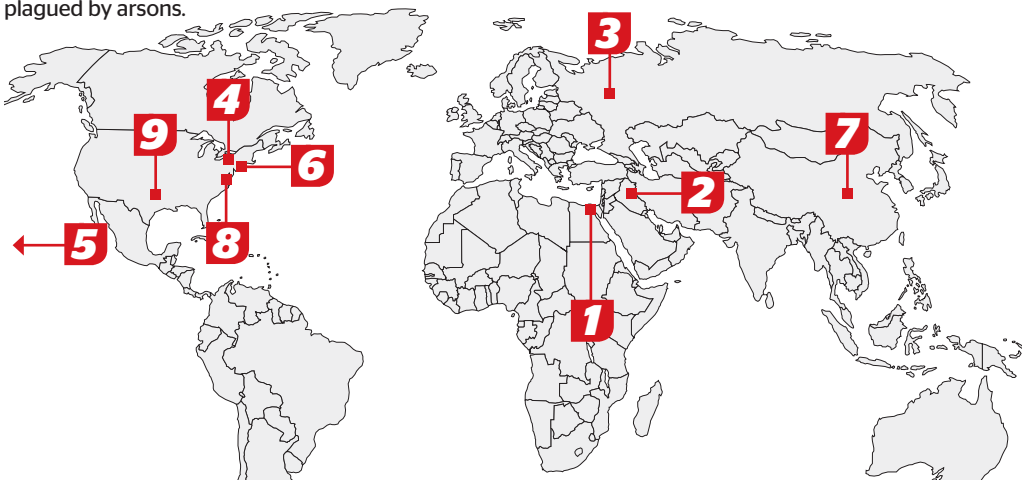

Bush: 'I'm looking for a job'

9 DALLAS Former President George W. Bush visited a Dallas hardware store that earlier this month made him a lighthearted offer to work as a greeter.

Andrea Bond, a manager at Elliott's Hardware, says Bush walked into the store Saturday and quipped: "I'm looking for a job."

The store had published an open letter to Bush, inviting him to apply for a store greeter position. Bond says Bush spent about an hour shopping and talking to customers during the surprise visit. He bought a few flashlights, batteries and a can of WD-40. He also bought night lights.

Bush and his wife, Laura, moved into a home in the Preston Hollow area of Dallas on Friday.

Josh Fields stretches Thursday during Spring Training in Phoenix. AP

THIRD WATCH

REPLACING JOE CREDE NOT A CONCERN FOR JOSH FIELDS

Associated Press

GLENDALE, Ariz. A sequel that follows a hit can be tricky business.

That's the spot that Josh Fields finds himself in trying to replace the popular Joe Crede at third base for the White Sox.

Fields has had success for the Sox. He hit 23 homers with 67 RBIs with a .244 batting average two years ago, a season in which Crede—one of the team's World Series heroes from 2005—battled injuries.

Last year, even with Crede once again missing games, Fields dipped mostly to class AAA after struggling with a balky knee that limited his fielding range.

He underwent surgery, and after a rigorous off-season program that emphasized his defense said he is ready to go.

"The biggest difference is the overall health of my knee and my lower body in general. I feel a lot better. I can move a lot easier," he said. "Flexibility plays a little into it, but I wouldn't be as flexible if I didn't have it worked on and corrected."

Manager Ozzie Guillen said he is somewhat concerned for Fields.

"If Fields stays healthy, he'll be fine," Guillen said. "I worry about him because our Plan B is pretty lean."

Fields sounds like he will allow any comparisons to Crede roll off his back.

"People can compare all they want," he said. "When it comes down to it, If I'm satisfied with what I'm doing and how I'm helping the team, that's what really matters."

Closing time

Associated Press

MESA, Ariz. Kevin Gregg wants to close. He's done it before. So does Carlos Marmol, whose stellar work as a setup man has earned him a shot at the marquee spot in the Cubs' bullpen.

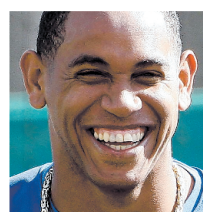

"Sure, why not? Everyone wants to be a closer. That's what I like," Marmol said.

Gregg and Marmol are competing this spring to replace Kerry Wood.

"We'll do what is best for the team to win games, no matter what," pitching coach Larry Rothschild said Sunday. "I think Kevin is capable of pitching more than one inning at a time, also. I think both of them can do it."

Gregg

Marmol

Marmol carved out a role as a top setup man in 2007 when he made 59 appearances after being called up in May, going 5-1 with a 1.43 ERA. Last year he was 2-4 with a 2.68 ERA in 82 appearances.

Bothered by a sore left knee, Gregg finished 7-8 with a 3.41 ERA and 29 saves last season—his nine blown saves tied for most in the majors.

"I don't see it really as a competition," Gregg said.

"I think we both can pitch in either role. I know he's been very successful as a setup guy and I've been successful as a closer. So where it leads to this year, we'll see what [manager] Lou [Piniella] is going to do and what he feels comfortable with."

ATTEND Bulls vs. Magic 7 p.m. Tuesday

Not only can you get a look at the new Bulls players, but you also can watch one of the best teams in the NBA. Hint, it's not the Bulls. Superman (and pretty good dunker) Dwight Howard and Orlando have the fourth-best record in the league. That's bad news for the Bulls, who are fighting for their playoff lives. This one could be entertaining.

Baseball Prospectus 2009: The Essential Guide to the 2009 Baseball Season

This just-released paperback is a baseball fan's dream. Touted as "the baseball bible for fantasy players and devoted fans," the "Prospectus" uses the Player Empirical Comparison and Optimization Test Algorithm (PECOTA) to forecast player performance for the coming season.

WATCH

Accenture Match Play Championship

1 p.m. Wednesday, Golf Channel

Golf, you scoff? Of course (no pun intended). In case you've been living under a rock—or in Whizzer's doghouse—Tiger Woods is returning this week. Whenever Tiger is swinging, golf is too. The Accenture is a tournament-style match, so a player can be eliminated after one match, even Tiger. Nobody wants that—especially the PGA.

WATCH

Illinois vs. Minnesota

6 p.m. Thursday Big Ten Network

The Fighting Illini might not have a chance at the Big Ten basketball title, but they are playing for a top seed in the NCAA Tournament. Minnesota is hoping just to make the tourney, so the Golden Gophers will make a game of this one. Hopefully the Illini can put up more than the 33 points they did last week in a loss to Penn State.

ATTEND

Storm vs. Milwaukee Wave

6 p.m. Saturday, Sears Centre Arena

For those of you who like your soccer with a little more scoring, we present the Chicago Storm of the Xtreme Soccer League. The Storm plays indoors on a field smaller than a regular soccer field and a bigger goal, hence the higher scoring. Think of it as the Arena Football League of soccer.

The closer

BEAR JORDAN

1 What's it mean when the Indiana Pacers beat you without their two leading scorers?

Time to trade the other half of your roster.

It means it's time to consider signing Elliott Serrano to a 10-day contract.

Perhaps it's time to consider moving the Bulls to the WNBA?

Bad, bad, bad! Any room on that Blackhawks bandwagon for me?

We could use No. 23—Jordan or LeBron, heck, even Quentin Richardson.

2 If you could give the Bulls a grade for last week's trades, what would it be?

I for irrelevant.

"F" for "fat big men who are not fast."

Incomplete. Trading with New York is like switching deck chairs between the Titanic and the Hindenburg.

C+. I wanted John Paxson to land the "big fish," and he brings me John Salmons. Not what I meant!

An "L" for late, an "A" for amiss, "M" for moldy and "E" for "excuse me?"

3 Joe Crede playing for the Twins is like ...

... trading a season-ending injury to the Twins.

... an acting major having to audition for "Rock of Love."

... music to my ears. I give it a month before Josh Fields' fans claim they always loved Joe.

... Jack Bauer fighting for the terrorists. BTW—"24" has jumped the shark.

... Tim Thomas playing for the Bulls again. Unbelievable.

4 Carlos Marmol and Kevin Gregg want to be the Cubs' closer. How should they settle it?

Gregg should shut up and let Marmol do his thing. How is this even an issue?

First one to develop a crippling blister on his pitching hand wins.

Rock, Paper, Scissors, and the loser has to drive Lou to Pittsburgh without using MapQuest.

A Kerry Wood-style blister-growing contest.

Whoever can outshout Carlos Zambrano gets it.

5 Mr. Obvious Arnold Schwarzenegger says drugs have no place in sports. Top that.

Brains have no place in bodybuilders.

One drug has a place in sports. Its name is Zolof, and its place is the seats at Soldier Field.

The GOP says government shouldn't spend billions on roads, schools, jobs ... unless it's in Iraq.

Jimmy has no place in a shampoo commercial. Too easy?

Actors have no place in politics.

Blackhawks goaltender Cristobal Huet (right) looks down Sunday as Minnesota Wild's Peter Olvecky and his teammates celebrate his winning goal. NUCCIO DINUZZO / TRIBUNE

WILD NIGHT

Josh Harding made 44 saves, and Peter Olvecky snapped a tie early in the third period with his first NHL goal to help the Minnesota Wild beat the Blackhawks 2-1 on Sunday night.

Dan Fritsche also scored for Minnesota, which was outplayed in the first half of the game, but rebounded to end the Blackhawks' four-game winning streak.

The Wild's NHL-leading penalty kill snuffed all eight Chicago advantages.

Jonathan Toews scored for the Blackhawks, playing just their second home game since Jan. 21.

Cristobal Huet of the Blackhawks started his sixth straight game and made 22 saves. Nikolai Khababulin, who normally alternates with Huet, is on injured reserve because of a lower-body injury.

The Blackhawks play 16 of their final 24 games at the

MINNESOTA 2, BLACKHAWKS 1

United Center. The Blackhawks outshot Minnesota 18-5 in the first period and dominated play, but Harding made several tough saves to keep the game scoreless.

Additionally, the Blackhawks' Andrew Ladd hit the post on a point-blank chance midway through the first, Toews misfired on a one-time attempt from the edge of the crease in the final seconds.

Harding was especially sharp early in the second to help the Wild overcome 4:18 of consecutive Chicago power-play time, including a 5-on-3 advantage that lasted 1:42. He robbed Troy Brouwer with a glove save 2:29 into the second during the 5-on-3.

Toews finally beat Harding at even strength—and on the Blackhawks' 26th shot—to give the Blackhawks a 1-0 lead at 10:03 of the second.

Harding slid to his right to cover a possible shot from Martin Havlat. Havlat, however, passed to Toews, who fired into an open net from the edge of the crease.

Kenseth driving like a champ

FONTANA, Calif. Daytona 500 winner Matt Kenseth made it two victories in a row Sunday, holding off a late challenge from Jeff Gordon to win the Auto Club 500.

Kenseth took the lead from Gordon in the pits with 38 laps to go in the 250-lap race and stayed ahead of the runner-up in the battle of former NASCAR Sprint Cup champions, pulling away over the last 20 laps.

It is the first time a Cup driver has won the first two races of the season since Gordon did it in 1997 on the way to the second of his four championships.

PACERS 98, BULLS 91

Troy Murphy had a season-high 27 points and the Indiana Pacers survived a second-half stretch of 11 minutes without a field goal to beat the Chicago Bulls 98-91 on Sunday. Ben Gordon had 28 points to lead the Bulls, which used three of the five players that came to the Bulls in a series of trades last week.

NO. 18 ILLINOIS 70, OHIO ST. 68

Four days after mustering just 33 points in a pitiful home loss, the Illini placed three players in double figures led by Mike Davis' 22 points and shot 58 percent from the field in a 70-68 victory over Ohio State on Sunday.

Family affairs

Lasagna envy, turkey damage control are all in the family for these chefs

By Mindy Yahr

Just about everyone has memories from family dinners—good, bad and ugly. While a great meal can be memorable, a great meal shared with family or friends is often unforgettable. Maybe that's why restaurants around town are starting to offer new family-style options with dishes portioned for groups and meant to be passed and shared. We checked in with a few chefs to get the lowdown on what to expect—and to find out what family dinners really mean to them.

Brian Huston

THE PUBLICAN 837 W. Fulton Market. 312-733-9555
When: 5 p.m. Sundays Cost: $45 per person

Every Sunday since this Fulton Market spot opened in October, chef de cuisine Brian Huston's been serving a four-course family-style dinner. Meals include salad, fish and meat courses portioned for sharing among your own party. Desserts are served individually. Recent dinners have featured dishes such as Cape Cod black bass with leeks, oyster mushrooms and fingerling potatoes, and whole roasted Swan Creek Farm pig with cannellini beans and salsa verde. The regular menu isn't available Sundays, but you can still order oysters or pork rinds from the bar menu.

Once a month, Sunday dinner is served with pairings ($20) from a featured brewery. Next up: Three Floyds Brewing Co. on March 1. In addition to Three Floyds brews, they'll be pouring Banana 7-Inch, a beer collaboration between executive chef Paul Kahan and the Three Floyds brewers.

» Family dinners with chef de cuisine Brian Huston:

What were family dinners like when you were growing up?

My mom's staples were minestrone soup and yellow chicken. Mom went back to school when I was in high school, so I took over a lot of the cooking. That was kind of the early seed for me.

What's your favorite memory from a family meal?

We always have a family turkey bowl on Thanksgiving, and this year it went into overtime. I asked my parents to check on the turkey. I lost the game and went home to see the turkey out on the stove. I tested the temperature and saw that it had shot up to 205 degrees. It needs to be 160 to 170. I freaked out and ripped it open like I was cracking its chest to cool it down. I'm 30 years old and my dad had to send me to my room.

Joncarl Lachman

HB HOME BISTRO

3404 N. Halsted St. 773-661-0299

When: 5:30 p.m. Wednesdays Cost: $50 for two; $25 for each additional person

Executive chef-owner Joncarl Lachman wanted to create a relaxed, homey atmosphere one night a week at his Boystown BYOB, so two weeks ago, he launched a three-course family dinner. The centerpiece is always a whole fish, a salad and Home Bistro's popular truffle fries. If you're not into sharing with your tablemates, a $29 three-course prix-fixe menu (any appetizer, salad and entree from the regular menu, surcharges apply for some dishes) is also available.

» Family dinners with executive chef Joncarl Lachman:
What were family dinners like when you were growing up?

My parents are from the Netherlands, so family dinners were giant heads of cabbage and ham. I didn't enjoy it. I grew up in Philly in an Italian neighborhood and my friends' mothers were making lasagna.

What do you remember most from that time?

I remember going to other kids' houses for dinner. My house was embarrassing. Kids didn't want to come over. I just remember kids avoiding our cabbage-filled house.

Rob Levitt
 FILE FOR METROMIX

MADO 1647 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-342-2340

When: 6 p.m., usually the last Sunday of every month (the next event will be March 15) Cost: About $65 per person (varies according to ingredients)

The last Sunday of every month, Rob and Allison Levitt transform the dining room of their Bucktown BYOB, creating two large communal tables where a five-course meal (the only option for the evening) is shared among strangers. All meals at the Levitt's locavore paradise are based on seasonal ingredients from local farmers, and those farmers often attend the family dinners to talk about their work. Rob butchers animals in house, and since the dinners launched in fall, offerings have centered on whole hogs and geese.

» Family dinners with chef-owner Rob Levitt:

What were family dinners like when you were growing up?

I feel like I am the last person who sat down and ate dinner with my family six nights a week. The big thing for us was that Mom cooked. It wasn't anything fancy, just spaghetti, meatloaf or hamburgers. But she made it. We didn't have microwaves making dinner.

And now?

The saddest part about opening a restaurant is that [Allison and I] never cook at home. We used to go to the Green City Market together and cook for each other. The way we cooked ... has evolved into what the restaurant has become.

National Pancake Week

Where: David Burke's Primehouse, 616 N. Rush St. 312-660-6000.

When it comes to bizarre food holidays, we're happy to fork over our skepticism in exchange for special menu items like these: Try half-dollar stacks with peanut butter and strawberry syrup ($8) for breakfast (7 a.m.-11:30 a.m.), and savory options such as steak-and-egg pancakes with mushrooms, caramelized onions and spinach ($14) for lunch (11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.). Through Friday.

Cost: $8-$16 per dish

Chicago Chef Week/Chicago Restaurant Week

Where: Various restaurants

No matter what you call it, diners win this week with specially priced, three-course menus at more than 140 spots in the city and 'burbs. Restaurant Week, organized by The Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau, points to such spots as Cafe Ba-Ba-Reeba and Farmerie 58, while about a dozen other restaurants are behind Chicago Chef Week, including Mado, Green Zebra and Province. Both continue through Friday. See metromix.com for complete details. Cost: $22 (lunch), $32 (dinner)

MONDAY DEAL

Beginners' capoeira class

Where: Gingarte Capoeira, 2056 W. 18th St. 773-443-3220.

Celebrate carnival by exploring a different side of Brazil—the one without the feathers and sequins—and get a good workout, to boot. Weekly classes tackle the Afro-Brazilian martial art that combines elements of dance, fight and gymnastics. 6 p.m. $10.

Hope from Dennen

Associated Press

Remember that one night at band camp? Brett Dennen does. The 29-year-old singer-songwriter discovered his love for music there and hopes to reach a large fan base while touring behind his latest effort, “Hope for the Hopeless.” Dennen is often compared to John Mayer and Jason Mraz, singers who have praised Dennen’s music. Dennen spoke recently about them, and his music.

You discovered your love for music at camp. Tell us about that.

Being there as a kid, I idolized my counselors, especially the ones who played guitar, and I thought if there’s anything I wanted to be, it’s a camp counselor, specifically one who played the guitar.

And that’s also what sort of developed my love for the folk singers because we played Neil Young songs and Paul Simon songs.

How would you describe your sound?

I would start by saying it’s in the folk, singer-songwriter genre. Some of the other things you might hear in there are some world music, specifically, and I’m just a really big fan of African music, a big fan of Brazilian music, and so I think I let a little bit of those influences get in. As well as some rock and some other Western music but I think it’s rooted in the singer-songwriter, storytelling folk music.

How’d it feel to have the likes of John Mayer and Jason Mraz praise your music?

It always feels good when someone appreciates your music and it feels really good when it’s a fellow musician just because musicians are usually really critical. And it feels even better when it’s a musician that you like, or a musicians you respect. So having guys like Jason Mraz or John Mayer, not only be into the music, but also vocally supportive of it is great.

And I’ve worked with Mraz on a song and John Mayer has even had me come on tour with him, and I’ve supported him in a couple different fashions on tour and he’s said incredible things about me in the press—having that support is amazing and it’s incredible. Like, how could I ask for anything more?

In terms of mainstream music, where would you like to be?

It’s more about reaching lots and lots and lots of people. And if I can do that through radio, I would love it. ... I think if I continue to do what I’ve done—play shows, connect with people one-on-one and let everything else around do the same—I think I can get to the place I want to get to, which is playing for thousands and thousands of people every night on tour, all over the world.

Penn wins for 'Milk'; 'Slumdog' hits jackpot

By Curt Wagner
REDEYE

Mickey Rourke was the sentimental favorite, but Sean Penn walked away with his second best-actor Academy Award on Sunday.

"You commie, homo-loving sons of guns," quipped Penn, whose portrayal of slain gay-rights pioneer Harvey Milk in "Milk" beat out Rourke's role as "The Wrestler." "I did not expect this and I want it to be very clear that I do know how hard I make it to appreciate me often."

Penn's was one of few surprises during Sunday's ceremony, which saw "Slumdog Millionaire" load up on the statuettes, winning eight Oscars including best picture and best director for Danny Boyle.

A story of hope amid squalor in Mumbai, India, "Slumdog" came in with 10 nominations. "Just to say to Mumbai, all of you who helped us make the film and all of those of you who didn't, thank you very much. You dwarf even this guy," Boyle said.

Penn's award was a big win for the gay rights movement in California, and he called out those who voted for the state's ban on gay marriage. "It is time for those who voted for the ban on gay marriage to sit and reflect," he said. "We've got to have equal rights for everyone."

Dustin Lance Black, the screenwriter for "Milk" and a fellow winner, also addressed gay marriage and growing up gay when he accepted his trophy for original screenplay.

"When I was 13 years old my beautiful mother and my father moved me from a conservative Mormon home in San Antonio, Texas, to California, and I heard the story of Harvey Milk and it gave me hope," Black said. "It gave me the hope to live my life."

Other awards went as expected, with Kate Winslet winning best actress for "The Reader" and giving another in her long list of elegant acceptance speeches.

"I'd be lying if I said I haven't made a version of this speech before," she said. "I think I was probably 8 years old and staring into the bathroom mirror, and this would have been a shampoo bottle. Well, it's not a shampoo bottle now."

Penelope Cruz, accepting the best supporting actress award for "Vicky Cristina Barcelona," said she was surprised.

"Has anybody ever fainted here? Because I might be the first one," she said, although she has won several other awards for the role.

The family of the late Heath Ledger accepted his Oscar for playing the Joker in the Chicago-filmed "The Dark Knight" after they received a standing ovation from the crowd at the Kodak Theater in L.A. His posthumous award will be held in trust by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and given to his daughter Matilda, now 3, when she turns 18.

"This award tonight would have humbly validated Heath's quiet determination to be truly accepted by you all here—his peers within an industry he so loved," said Ledger's father, Kim.

It was a touching moment on a night with few surprises. AP CONTRIBUTED.

Hugh Jackman can't save Oscars

Hugh Jackman bombed at the box office last year, but his Oscar opening was a big hit.

He should have quit while he was ahead. A second Broadway-style number slowed down a ceremony that wasn't as different as it was promised to be.

The "Australia" actor, hosting his first Academy Awards, opened with a musical tribute to the best-picture nominees that he claimed to have come up with in his garage due to Oscar producers downsizing the ceremony.

The lyrics weren't that clever, but what the showman did offer was a loose, fun charming moment that got Hollywood's biggest party started the right way. He sang with Anne Hathaway, bashed the Academy for not nominating "The Dark

"Knight" for best picture, danced with the "Craiglist dancers" and, with armbands a la "The Wrestler," plugged his upcoming film "X-Men Origins: Wolverine."

Whew! Then he handed those elbow pads back to Mickey Rourke, making a joke about the actor's string of no-holds-barred acceptance speeches during this awards season.

"Say whatever is on your mind because you know we have a seven-second delay," Jackman said, "but if you win, we switch to a 20-minute delay."

Later, Jackman ate up what seemed like 20 minutes himself, when his big production number with Beyonce and others stopped the show cold. It wasn't that it was that bad (I admit it, I do like musicals), it just seemed horribly out of place.

No one needs to revisit "Mamma Mia!" or "High School Musical" at the Oscars.

The Academy promised a different show, but it wasn't. The set seemed smaller and more intimate, but the show was still laborious and overproduced—just like that second Jackman number.

Five presenters introduced each acting nominee. And although the mini-tribute to each actor was nice, they stretched the show too long.

Thankfully a filmed segment from "Pineapple Express" stars Seth Rogen and James Franco and the great Tina Fey broke up the monotony on a night when no surprises occurred among the winners.

And yes, once again the show went over its allotted time. But won't it always? The Oscars ceremony is a big, extravagant and overdone beast, and not even Jackman is huge enough to corral it.

Oscar meter

Some parts of the revamped Oscar telecast worked. Some didn't. Metromix movies producer Matt Pais and RedEye chart the show's ups and downs.

Tina Fey and Steve Martin

Their presentation before handing over the best original screenplay award included this exchange:

Fey: "It is said that to write is to live forever."

Martin: "The man who said that is dead."

Ben Stiller

If anyone can send up Joaquin Phoenix's recent weirdness, it's Stiller. Nicely done.

Kunio Kato

The winner for best animated short film struggled to find the words to express his gratitude in English, so he closed with some Japanese: "Domo arigato, Mr. Roboto." Well-played.

Acting awards presentations

The individual intros for acting nominees were great, but it bumped the over-under for the show's running time up to 14 hours.

Cuba Gooding Jr.

Helping present the supporting actor award is his best role since winning it himself in 1997.

Robert Pattinson

Hello, personality deficit. Are we sure the "Twilight" star doesn't play a zombie in real life?

Red, (almost) White...

While shades of white and even darker colors made statements at Sunday's Oscar fashion parade, many of the standout dresses matched the red carpet. Amanda Seyfried, Heidi Klum, Virginia Madsen and Phoebe Cates were among those dressed in red, while Evan Rachel Wood, Anne Hathaway and Jessica Biel wore nearly white gowns. Two standouts: nominees Taraji P. Henson and Amy Adams. Here are some of the best and worst from Sunday night, with comments from the Twittersverse and RedEye staff members. REDEYE, AP

HAPPY BIRTHDAY PISCES

Feb. 19-March 20

You'll get some pleasant feedback this week, boosting your self-esteem. Your neighbor will tell you how hot you look in those jeans. Your former flame will declare his or her undying love for you. The sun is reminding you that you rock.

Aries

March 21-April 19

Fire signs love to take risks, and this week you'll push the envelope. Venus is inspiring you to make a complete fool of yourself. You'll do a sudden striptease for a casual friend, hoping that he or she responds favorably. The cosmic signs say you'll get lucky.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

You're wondering if you need to get therapy because your current romance is making you crazy. You're facing sexual addiction, codependency and narcissism all at once. Pluto is stirring up every sexual neurosis you could possibly have. At least it's not boring.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

You make seduction look so easy. Some smiles, a few well-placed sensual touches and wham: A sexy stranger agrees to go home with you. You never know what to do the next day. Call in 24 hours? Send flowers? Jupiter is creating confusion.

Cancer

June 22-July 22

For such a shy sign, you're behaving like a completely different person. You're having fun channeling your wild and woolly self. You're expressing lust and letting that certain someone know how you really feel. The sun says keep at it.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

You've always been a fool for love. Venus is making you more foolish than usual. You know it's a bad idea to call up your ex—especially since he got married. You're aware that you shouldn't ask that cute girl out since her boyfriend is a football player. Still.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The moon opposite your sign has you wondering if you've lost your charms. You feel fat, ugly and grumpy. You probably haven't morphed into the Hunchback of Notre Dame. But just to be sure, call up a sexy friend for some reassurance.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You'll be in a creative mood, thanks to

Neptune. It's time to bring out your dog-eared copy of the Kama Sutra and try some poses with your lover. Or you might stop by the toy shop and bring home some playful bedroom props.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

As a Water sign, you're a natural psychologist. You're good at figuring people out. You have your eye on someone special. Put those mental powers to good use. With a little effort, you'll figure out his or her turn-ons. The moon says do some digging.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Venus is increasing your sexual cravings. You can't be satisfied by just one person or just one relationship. Instead, you require multiple forms of stimulation. Don't expect any single partner to be able to keep up with you. You need too much right now.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Let go of stuff that doesn't matter. So what if your ex used to make fun of your pot belly? So what if your guy once was late picking you up for a date, and you missed seeing the latest chick flick together? Pluto says get a grip.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Five planets are teaming up to increase your passion and your emotional firepower. You'll make lusty declarations to strangers. You'll flash naughty body parts at customers. Just don't be so outrageous that you end up getting arrested, OK?

MIKE MYERS VS. PARIS HILTON

"Guru" made a reported $32 million at the domestic box office. Myers' "Austin Powers" sequels both topped $200 million. Ouch.

HISTORY LESSON

With three Razzies, Hilton tied the record Eddie Murphy set last year when he won three for his roles in "Norbit," according to The Associated Press.

At the ceremony, Razzies founder John Wilson shredded a copy of "Guru," according to CNN.

THE DISS

Wilson told the AP that Hilton is "not famous for any talent she has yet exhibited."

A ridiculous beard was a huge (and lame) part of Myers' shtick in "Guru."

COSTUME SHOP

Hilton's clothes in "Hottie"? Let's just say they're of a style that rhymes with "nutty."

Myers may have dropped a stinker with "Guru," but he'll always be remembered for "Shrek," right?

REDEEMING QUALITY?

We're still thinking ...

It may take a while for Myers to bounce back, but he'll think of something—hopefully something that doesn't involve a goofy accent.

HIDDEN POTENTIAL

She will not rest until MTV gives her six more reality shows, an after-school special and a made-for-MTV movie.

THE WINNER: PARIS HILTON

Wow, it turns out she IS a bigger flop than "The Love Guru." When you're famous for being famous, it apparently doesn't take much to eclipse that movie as the most-dissed thing in Hollywood.

Flopstars

Why should the Oscars get all the attention? Sure, they had the razzle dazzle of Hugh "Huge" Jackman, but where was the scorn? Where were the put-downs?

For those, we have the Razzies, the anti-Academy Awards, which were awarded Saturday in Hollywood for some of the industry's worst projects.

"The Love Guru" won three: worst picture, actor (Mike Myers) and screenplay. Not to be outdone, Paris Hilton picked up the same number of awards for worst actress ("The Hottie and the Nottie") supporting actress ("Repo! The Genetic Opera") and screen couple (with "Hottie" co-stars Christine Lakin and Joel David Moore).

So who is the biggest flop—Hilton or Myers? That, dear friends, is the reason we have RedEye's Faceoff!

Madea joins the A-list

You're looking at one of the top female box office stars in Hollywood. That's right: Tyler Perry's "Madea Goes to Jail" reigned at the weekend box office, opening with $41.1 million, according to studio estimates Sunday. It was the highest grossing film ever for both Perry and the film's studio, Lionsgate, the AP reports. Perry's 2005 "Diary of a Mad Black Woman" was his highest previous debut with $30 million. "The character is one of the great screen creations of the last decade," said Steve Rothenberg, president of distribution at Lionsgate.

Tyler Perry as Madea

"I just got done talking to the Santa Monica Police Department. They gave me a bed to sleep in 10 years ago. ... I asked them for two pillows. They told me to [bleep] off."

Mickey Rourke, in one of the few printable parts of his victory speech after winning best actor for "The Wrestler" at Saturday's Spirit Awards. The speech quickly became a YouTube hit.

THE VELVET ROPE

Fatherhood rocks

For Joel Madden, being a father is better than winning an Oscar. (Not that he has won, of course.) The Good Charlotte rocker posted on the band's Web site that he and girlfriend Nicole Richie are expecting again. "I am so happy to tell everyone that Harlow is going to be a big sister! God has truly blessed my family." Harlow was born Jan. 11, 2008.

Leak? Weak!

iTunes may soon find itself on Kelly Clarkson's naughty list. Rolling Stone reports that the digital music store's Norwegian division (Really? Norway?) accidentally leaked the pop singer's latest album, "All I Ever Wanted," weeks before its March 10 release date. Does the scenario sound familiar? Last week, U2's latest album, "No Line on the Horizon," was leaked by a division of Universal Music Group in Australia. Someone give those marketing execs a raise!

T-Pain cancels show

T-Pain takes risks with his music, but he wasn't taking any chances this time. He canceled a concert in Guyana after receiving what a promoter called "credible death and kidnapping threats" in the South American nation, according to The Associated Press. A local police commander said Sunday authorities will investigate.

THE DIGIT

$1 billion

The amount "The Dark Knight" has made worldwide, Variety reported. The Batman sequel has made $533 million domestically and $567 million overseas, Warner Bros. announced late last week.
